Step into history with L'Ameillée, a stunning Napoleonic château in Puy-l'Évêque, nestled in the heart of the Lot Valley and Cahors vineyards. This estate offers a grand main house, a charming gatekeeper's cottage, historic outbuildings, and 2 hectares of land—all just minutes from amenities and transport links.

DESRIPTIF

A Timeless Château in the Heart of the Lot Valley
A Rich History Steeped in French Heritage
Dating back to the 18th and 19th centuries, L'Ameillée is a property of distinction, once home to some of Puy-l'Évêque's most prominent figures. Originally the residence of the canton's judge, it later became the home of the town's physician. Over the years, the estate was owned by an esteemed local family of notaries, doctors, and high-ranking military officers, with several former mayors of Puy-l'Évêque calling it home.

The name Ameillée refers to a landscape once filled with almond trees. The estate sits near what was once the town's historical gendarmerie (1879-1962), reinforcing its deep roots in the community.

Today, this prestigious estate offers a rare opportunity to own a piece of French history, with beautifully maintained architecture, elegant living spaces, and stunning countryside views.
