This is a magnificent south facing property, believed to have been built from 1820 onwards, nestled in the heart of a private, enclosed garden. The last section, the most luxurious, dates from 1890. Double gates lead onto a gravel terrace. The façade of the house features two unique original features: a large 'marquise' (glazed porch) above a

DESCRIPTION

On the first floor are six large, light-filled bedrooms, all overlooking the garden and the swimming pool.

The house is partly fitted with double glazing and has oil-fired central heating (a recently installed condensing boiler and an oil storage tank). It has a water softener and is connected to the mains drainage system. The house has recently been connected to fibre.
